

It is generally believed that some people are born with certain talents, for instance for sport or music, and others are not. However, it is sometimes claimed that any child can be taught to become a good sports person or musician.

Discuss both these views and give your own opinion.

Nowadays, an increase ~~of-in the~~ number of professionals in various kinds of skills such as sport and music can be seen dramatically because of life facilities compared to the past. Since there are totally different characteristics among people, the reason ~~of-for~~ such successes is a moot point which ~~is~~ apparently ~~associates-associated~~ with innate talent or hard-working.

First of all, it is an axiom that natural talent has much of a role to play in becoming professional in ~~a~~ specific skill. In other words, innate talent which is obtained genetically facilitates ways in order for everyone to achieve their goals more easily particularly in less time. However, in terms of success, my firm conviction is that the mentioned talent should be inextricably bound up with hard-working. Those who do not attempt a lot to enhance their ability will regrettably not become an expert in each field merely through their talent.

In my opinion, a deep interest is the most important factor in being successful in each profession. Not only can it be absolutely effective, but also it can give a plenty of positive reinforcement to people even in difficult situations of life. Moreover, ~~a~~ real enthusiasm leads to stimulating ~~an~~ individual's mind which in turn brings about more motivation and willpower. On the other hand, acquisition of some skills for instance, playing music instruments generally needs constant practices in ~~a-the~~ long time. Therefore, as I mentioned in ~~the~~ previous paragraph, I strongly believe that only when everyone makes a lot of efforts to gain their aims, will they be ~~able to~~ succeed undoubtedly, ~~hence-resulting in~~ ~~satisfactory-satisfaction~~ in each field. Last but not least, as the saying goes, where there is a will, there is a way.

In conclusion, further to the above explanation, even though natural talent has real impacts on becoming ~~a~~ master of any profession, ~~an~~ interest, enthusiasm and willpower besides ~~and-hard~~ ~~working~~ can be more effective in this regard.