

Q :Nowadays environmental problems are too big to be managed by individual persons or individual countries .In other words ,it is an international problem .To what extent do you agree or disagree?

A:

In recent decades ,a raging debate regarding environmental issues has taken place in society and the media .These issues and effects of them made a dramatic impact on the life of all species all over the world and need a decisive decision and comprehensive measurements .But individuals and governments pass the buck and none of them undertakes the responsibility of safeguarding the environment .I opine it is ~~duty-bound of~~encumbent on both governments and each person who lives in the world to spare no effort for preserving nature and cleansing up the environment and in this essay I mention my reasons.

Governments on account of their facilities and power they can apply to countries play an effective role in the mission of conserving the environment .For one ,governments and legislators could have regulated standards of sustainable development ,like rules for establishing a factory or constructing buildings competent to the environment .For example ,one of the leading governments executes an admirable plan by allocating budget to banks to lend ~~debts~~loans for rebuilding old houses which were not optimal in consuming energy for their temperature .What the governments can do ,never could be replaced by individuals' efforts because the impact of governments are comprehensive and include all aspects of life.

Each individual could help to ~~promote~~ameliorate the situation or at least imitate the drawbacks of human life on the environment .People could take part in protecting nature by organizing local groups and mobilizing citizens to protect the local environment .For instance ,if the type of a species is in danger and near extinction ,they can tap into their regional resources to prevent the extinction of the species .Moreover ,each of us could help the survival of the environment by putting a brake on the consumption of detergents ,using public transport and cutback of using plastic bags .

In sum ,I admit that the daunting task of protecting the environment from harms needs the morale of both governments and each of the persons who live on earth .I believe ,we can ~~we~~-by ~~concentrated~~concerted and steady effort and responsible participation make the earth more pleasant for future generations.
