

Trees are essential for the existence of the human race as they provide the oxygen that we need to survive. Yet, daily all around the globe large areas of woodland are being destroyed. Many people feel that they as individuals can do nothing and that only governments and large companies can halt the destruction.

- How far do you agree or disagree with this?

In this day and age, the increasing rate of destruction of trees is a main problem which most of the countries are dealing with. Some countries have offered a multitude of solutions for this issue. One of which is to meet our needs from recycled papers.

First of all, many people believe that the key to solving these problems lies with the governments and large companies. For instance, the government can control the irregular construction by creating a green belt around the cities to avoid the destruction of trees in rural areas. However, the role of the people in adopting the rules is important and supporting the government cannot be ignored since everybody is responsible for their own society, so not only do people not play a minor role but also they can help the government to implement the right culture in society.

Besides, everyone knows that forests and plants have much of a role to play in the health of human life. Destruction of ~~tress-trees~~ causes the people ~~not to be able to~~cannot experience the clean air compared to the past which in turn brings about more illness for people. One of the solutions for solving this problem is using ~~of~~recycled papers. Today, many products are made from recycled papers. This culture must be developed among the people by the government. The government can encourage people to collect papers for next uses. This is why the role of the government is important in this regard.

So overall, I believe that time is ticking away for our planet, so any solutions to the environment issue will take time to achieve.
