

Some people claim that not enough of the waste from homes is recycled. They say that the only way to increase recycling is for governments to make it a legal requirements.

To what extend extent do you think laws are needed to make people recycle more of their waste ?

These days, ~~the~~ quite a significant amount of home waste's recycling, is much valuable as the other modern difficulties. Which contains many sayings. Let's discuss ~~about~~ these perspectives.

In from my point of view, it is essential that the lawmakers need to make several obligations to enforce their citizens to attending about to the household wastes. One of the effective strategies that we can mention it, is introducing legal manners. Singapore could be one of the best examples, this city has heavy fines due to tackle forcing/compelling inhabitants to obey the rules. In terms of specific behaviors like, throwing out the trashes into the garbage bins or even chewing gums. These legalize actions, reduced many trash problems beyond the mega areas by many expert beliefs which make this land unique and special. Not To not forget, governments must extend the required facilities on the each side of the towns which are their main duty. So that, the others access ~~to a~~ variety of bins which can be used to recycle non bio-degradable substances/can separate different materials.

On the other hand, some people insist that this issue can also resolve to do certain movements, people's awareness and education. House owners may be concerned for about how massive are is their waste produced and find landfills to dump them which was the only solution in the past, but not now. Governments could encourage them to collect their trashes in possible ways. And lead their attentions s to this state, harmful waste like plastics are effective to our living areas. So they can damage our oceans and the species such as marines in hard deep ways. To cap it all, teaching children from the beginning at their desk will have much better impact to negotiate cope with these situations s.

In conclusion, I encourage this idea as a brilliant solution for this matter. Education and informing people about our environment have much influence rather than punishment, but they are not enough.
