

Meat production requires relatively more land than crop production. Some people think as land is becoming scarce, the world's meat consumption should be reduced.

What measures could be taken to reduce the world's meat consumption? What kinds of problems might such a measure cause?

There ~~are-is~~ incontrovertible evidences that for producing meats more land is are needed in comparison with producing crops. ~~Too~~ many speculate that the demand for meat should be depleted due to dearth of land. Although some courses of actions can decrease meat consumption, they might lead to some problems too also.

Firstly, raising the awareness of individuals is the most important measure which can induce to reduce meat consumption. I strongly believe that people are not educated enough to know what will probably occur if they consume meat more than usual. For example, most of the elderly across the world are suffering from cardiovascular diseases, which are related directly to eating meat, because of the high density fat that is in meat. Therefore, every individual should change their lifestyle to consume more vegetables instead of meats. By regarding this fact as to how hard it is that how much is-hard to change every individual's all-person-lifestyle in a society, it can be done if every individual has an intension to respect for their own health besides raising awareness.

Another measure can deplete this demand is to put tax not only on retailing meat, but also on producing it. Governments can take into account such these affairs such as monitoring the amount of annual meat consumption per capita and then put taxes on it in order to defer people from excessive meat eating meat. On the other hand, these restrictions could be faced with public resistances. Therefore, without any public endorsement, putting taxes on meat can lead to a predicament situation for counties.

To put in a nutshell, from my viewpoint, it is true that governments can make individuals avoid from-eating meat, but it is also true that individuals can be trained and educated in order to change their lifestyle to eat less meat, so when we can preserve our health; there is no need for of anybody to force us.
