

Which would you choose—a high-paying job with long hours that would give you little time with family and friends or a lower-paying job with shorter hours that would give you more time with family and friends?

- 1- High paying jobs for lower ages for saving and provision god life for offspring.
- 2- Draw sufficient pension for old ages
- 3- High inflation and the probability of being jobless

Taking up a well-paid careers has a pivotal role in qualifications of our lives. Meanwhile it requires vigorous determination and even academic expertise. From what has been discussed, some prefer to have an ordinary lifestyle and have more leisure time for mingling with their family and friends instead, as opposed to this belief, some people maintain/argue/hold/sayspeak-up only a hard-working person can please an otherwise monotonous everyday activity activities. I myself maintain that a high-paying job is an inseparable condition of a comfortable life.

In the first place, it is up to us to either undergo working for long hours in the span of our youth and having a more comfortable life when we get senescent or bearing-bear a harsh situation in aging years. Furthermore, the substantial point is not only do we have commitment to ourselves, also tranquility of individuals who are under our charge can even have more importance. For instance, how can we expect to have successful and cheerful children without provision of their crucial emotional needs? In other words, the parents' wages have inextricable connection with the quality qualities-of-the children's life environment.

Secondly, in our contemporary world, various professions become complicated more and more and this requires us to keep abreast of every novel progress and information in a definite specialty. Therefore, we will lose our jobs unless we devote more time for reading and tackling with new phenomena aen like the advent of software and launching automated apparatus. Then, although we may be satisfied with a mediocre income with shorter hours, it is sounds plausible that we become jobless with the passage of time.

And finally, as for another advantage of working hard, we can mention to fulfilling humans' appetite for learning. I would like to stress that one of the most axiomatic factors s of numerous inventions and advancements is a sense of adventure and perfectionism. On the other hand, contrary to popular belief, we carry out different affairs not for more money or perks per se. on occasion, a sense of usefulness and efficiency is a motive for extra work.

All in all, I believe that the drawbacks of the jobs with lower payments and shorter time are more than their merits. As ~~it~~ mentioned above, almost the solitary way to keep us and our family in comfort ~~luxury~~ is dedication of more time to work. In addition, in our modern world, we will lose even those careers not need inged any sophisticated specialty, if we do not spend dt time ~~for~~ keeping up with their recent developments/amendments (advances/advancements). Finally, we carry out/shoulder/fulfil/do some duties owing to they are rewarding.
