

Countries are becoming more and more similar because people are able to buy the same products anywhere in the world.

Do you think this is a positive or negative development?

---

Nowadays with advancement of technology and new way of business people can purchase the same goods almost everywhere in the world which ~~was were~~ not accessible in the past. I would argue that this is a positive trend to easy and instant access to the same market in every country and this essay will discuss this issue.

It can be argued that there are numerous advantages to have similar products in every ~~countries-country~~. First of all it can be mentioned that widespread existence of products in all communities can reduce the cost of these goods, so a vast majority of people can purchase those kinds of materials. Not only does having easy and instant access cause lower price of special product but also increase ~~its it's~~ popularity among different societies. The Second useful factor about this issue is that people have the same opportunity and chances to access high quality products compared to the past which only developed countries have this right to benefit from high material goods and Also it can be mentioned in modern ways of business which ~~are is~~ based on the recent high technology, customers do not need to wait long for a long time to receive their order from foreign communities as it is available and easy to access in their own countries. This trend is beneficial especially for underdeveloped countries which is find it difficult to get some special and technical products in the past but nowadays the situation has been totally changed and almost every modern society has this opportunity to get products which they want.

To sum up, I would argue that people can ~~be benefited~~ from getting access to the same market in every country because at least they can access ~~to~~ competitive market which ~~did does~~ not exist in the past decades in such a way away.